AWARD

This is a reference made to this Tribunal by the Government by its Order No. IRM/CON/(53)/75/IT-20/76/205, dated 10th February, 1977, for adjudication of a dispute between the above parties. The Schedule annexed to the Order of reference reads as follows:

"Whether Shri Inus Sayad Usman, driver was refused employment with effect from 30-4-1975 by the Management of M/s. V. S. Naik, Mapusa (Goa)?"

If so, to what relief the workman is entitled to?"

2. The case of the workman party I, as per his statement of claim, is that he was working as driver for the opponent's Transport Company and without any notice was orally told by the Partner of the said Company that the bus he was driving was given for repairs from February, 1975, and that after it was repaired the workman would be informed to join duties. In the meanwhile, he should keep quiet and get his monthly salary, plus daily allowance and meal bhatta of Rs. 2/- regularly. After the bus was repaired, the opponent, instead of directing the workman to resume duties, put another driver on the said bus and told the workman that he should wait for another eight days. After 8 days, the workman contacted the partner but he refused to let him join his duties; his request for salary, allowance, bonus etc. was also refused. He was regularly attending the Office but the Opponent never cared to allow him to join duties. However, a registered letter dated 15-3-1975 saying that the workman had remained absent from duty from 11-2-1975 was sent to him and he was asked to resume duties. He went to the office to resume duties but the partner of the opponent refused to admit him. The said partner also was not willing to pay him his salary, allowances etc. The workman approached the Labour Commissioner, who directed the representative of the opponent to take the workman on duty with immediate effect. However, when the workman went to the company to resume duties, he was not allowed by the partner of the company. He has prayed that the company be directed to pay his salary, allowance, bonus, daily meal bhatta, and other facilities, whatever they may be, up to date and any other relief that the Tribunal thinks fit.

3. The employer (Party II), in its written statement, has stated as follows:

The employer never terminated the services of the workman. They never refused employment to the workman and he was told a number of times to resume duties, but he failed to do so. The workman, instead of reporting for duty, started making demands which were beyond the terms of his employment. The workman deliberately stayed away from duties from 11-2-75, without obtaining any leave from the employer. Hence, he is not entitled to any payment for that period. Prior to GDT-2261, the workman was driving bus No. GDT-2196 for sometime. Earlier, he was directed to drive other buses and had obeyed the directions. He was subjected to general terms of the employer under which any driver would be shifted from one route to another, depending upon the circumstances. Bus No. GDT-2261 was out for repairs for about 2 months; during this period the workman was instructed to operate bus No. GDT-104 on Mapusa-Pernem route, but the workman refused to obey the instructions and stayed away from services. He put his own conditions which were illegal and beyond the scope of the terms of his services. For instance, he demanded that arrangement be made to reach him to his residence at Valpoi everyday, besides demanding higher pay and additional bhatta. The workman got employment elsewhere during the period of his absence. He was seen working as a driver for F.C.I's Contractor and other employers. The action of the workman was thus misconduct, wilful refusal to work and insubordination. On 31st January, 1975, the workman sent a letter to the employer clearly stating: "I may please be given more pay and bhatta, thereafter I can work in your Company any route." The employer directed the workman to report to duty on various occasions and even threatened to take disciplinary action against him. The workman, however, chose to file a complaint against the employer before the Labour Commissioner. During the Conciliation Proceedings the employer offered to take the workman back provided he reported to duty. Even then the workman failed to report. The employer reported to the Labour Commissioner the wilful neglect on the part of the employee to report for duty. The employer paid advance salary to the workman with the hope that he may join duty, but he refused to do so with no reason. The workman now demands retrenchment dues and notice pay to which he is not entitled.

4. There was no rejoinder filed by the workman.

5. After a series of adjournments by my predecessors, the matter was taken up by me. In one of the hearings the employer's representative submitted to me that the parties had already settled the matter. He was directed to file the settlement terms on the next date given, but he failed to do so. When the matter was fixed for evidence of the parties, both of them remained absent. Hence, evidence was declared closed and the case kept for award.

6. Since both the parties have shown little interest in this dispute and since the employer's representative has stated that they have amicably settled the matter, although no settlement terms were produced before the Tribunal, I feel that either because the matter is settled or for some other reason the parties are not interested in proceeding with this case. No evidence has been led by the parties on the matter of reference and, in the absence of such evidence, I am unable to answer to the reference in one way or the other. The reference, therefore, stands disposed off.
